

We All Want The Same Thing is an invigorating movie that will capture the core of the human spirit. It is an English-language Latin focused feature film set in Little Havana- Miami, Florida

A diverse Latin community tries to save a Brazilian family from being separated and deported--a coming-home, a fake wedding, ice agents, and a hurricane on the way provide high drama and comedy. Through this community we experience a unique tale of love and loss and the struggle for freedom.

We All Want The Same Thing is the tangible fiber that touches the vast Hispanic audience in America as well as the affluent American movie goers who have proven to be loyal to similar films.

The international demand for Hispanic films that resonate with real life stories continues to grow. A story such as the one told in We All Want The Same Thing will be tremendously well-received all over the world.
